

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In one embodiment, a method of delivering documents that accompany an electronic mail includes the steps of receiving an electronic mail, removing a document attached to the electronic mail, providing in the electronic mail a link
5 that leads to a storage location for the document, and sending the electronic mail to a recipient. Among other advantages, this allows the recipient to receive the electronic mail without the document and, if the recipient wants, to retrieve the document from the storage location at a later time. The link to the storage location may be posted on a web page, with the link of the web page being 10 included in the electronic mail.
